

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

P R E F A C E.

By the city charter the administration of the police is vested in the mayor and aldermen, who have full and exclusive power to appoint a city marshal and assistants, and all other police officers, and they may remove the same when in their opinion sufficient cause for removal exists.

The general statutes, in chap. 18, sect. 38, provide that the mayor and aldermen may at any time appoint police officers with all the powers of constables except the power of serving and executing civil process, who shall hold their offices during the pleasure of the mayor and aldermen.

Sections 1, 2 and 3 of chapter 23, provide that the mayor and aldermen shall appoint a suitable person to be officer of the watch and direct the manner in which watchmen shall be equipped. The watch shall see that all disturbances and disorders are prevented and suppressed. During the night-time they may examine all persons abroad whom they may have reason to suspect of any unlawful design, demand of them their business abroad, and whither they are going; may disperse any assembly of three or more such persons, and enter any building for the purpose of suppressing a riot or breach of the peace therein. Persons so suspected and not giving a satisfactory account of themselves, persons so assembled and not dispersing when ordered, and persons making, aiding, or abetting in a riot or disturbance, may be arrested by the watch, and shall thereupon be safely kept, by imprisonment or otherwise, until the next morning, and then taken before a police court or trial justice, to be examined and proceeded against.

Officers and members of the watch, when on duty, may carry a club of not more than eighteen inches in length ; shall wear such badge of office as the mayor or selectmen may direct, and shall walk the rounds in and about the streets, lanes, and wharves of the city and town, to prevent danger by fire, and to see that good order is kept.

Section 33, chap. 165, provides that a person found on a street, highway, or other public place, in the night-time, committing any of the offences or disorders previously mentioned in that chapter, may be apprehended by any sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable, or watchman, or by any other person by the order of any magistrate or either of said officers, without a written warrant, and kept in custody in a convenient place, not more than twenty-four hours, Sundays excepted, at or before the expiration of which time, he shall be brought before a justice of the peace or police court, to be proceeded against or discharged as such magistrate shall determine.

Justices of the peace may, upon view of any affray, riot, assault, or battery, without any warrant or writing, command the assistance of every sheriff, deputy sheriff and constable, for suppressing the same and for arresting all who are concerned therein. Constables are authorized by the general statutes to require suitable aid in the execution of their office in a criminal case, or for the preservation of peace, or for the apprehending or securing of a person for a breach of the peace. Any offence or attempt upon the person or property of another, going unlawfully armed, night-walking, and disorderly conduct, are considered breaches of the peace.

Police officers should carefully respect the right of the citizen to immunity from arrest, except for cause stated under oath, and when the person is specially designated; but it has often been held that constables and police officers, as conservators of the peace, have power to arrest, upon view, persons violating the laws, and detain them until they can be brought before a magistrate. In all cases of felony, which is defined by the general statutes to be any offence punishable by death or imprisonment in the state prison, or in cases of dangerous wounding, whereby felony is likely to ensue, constables and police officers, upon probable suspicion, may arrest without warrant, and for that purpose may break open doors and even kill the felon, if he cannot otherwise be taken.

The foregoing statute provisions enumerate some of the powers and duties of police officers. Other duties are prescribed in the following Rules and Regulations adopted by the board of mayor and aldermen, with a view to secure uniformity of discipline and practice in the police department. With these, it is expected that every member of the police department will make himself familiar, and that he will also make frequent examination of the laws and ordinances, that he may fully understand the peculiar responsibilities of the trust which is committed to him for faithful discharge. By so doing, he will be enabled to contribute his share toward making the department efficient and respected by the public. Expected to enforce the law with vigor and impartiality, he should observe the law himself, and he cannot expect to retain his office unless his official and private conduct be such as to secure the good-will of the order-loving portion of the community, and respect from the unfortunate and vicious. He should at all times bear in mind that the value of his services will much depend upon his own good sense, sound discretion, and honest determination to exert himself within the range of his duties in such manner as will best promote the public safety and convenience. When on duty, he should be quiet, civil and orderly, use no harsh or profane language, act with energy and firmness, and always be prompt to protect and assist his police associates when circumstances require. Such conduct will ever deserve commendation, while the opposite will merit censure.

J. B. F. OSGOOD, Mayor.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

MARSHAL.

1. The marshal shall be responsible for the faithfulness of all the members of the department, and shall report all instances of neglect of duty to the mayor.

2. He shall see that the police station is kept in good order, provided with copies of the General Statutes, and that each member of the department is provided with a copy of the Rules and Regulations.

3. He shall keep a book in which shall be entered the name, age, residence, and birthplace of every member of the police, and an account of the extra duties done by the patrol, watch, and extra police, and on the third day of each month he shall transmit to the mayor a statement of the amount due for police service for the month preceding, with the requisite certified bills and vouchers for the same, together with an account of all other expenses necessarily incurred for the previous month, approved by him.

4. He shall audit and enter in proper books all the accounts and expenses of the department and an account of all moneys received by him as marshal, or by the assistant marshals, or from any other source by virtue of his office, and he shall settle his account with the city treasurer quarterly. All the books kept by him shall be open for the inspection of the mayor and aldermen.

5. He shall keep a book in which shall be entered complaints for violation of the laws and ordinances, robberies, burglaries, information relative to articles lost, and other similar matters, and he shall cause prompt attention to be paid to such complaints or information.

6. He shall cause a meteorological diary to be kept at the police station, with the state of the weather at noon, at sunset, at ten o'clock in the evening, and at one o'clock, five o'clock, and eight o'clock in the morning.

7. Whenever a disregard of any law, ordinance, or order, prevails to an extent prejudicial to the well being of the city, he shall cause the said law, ordinance, or order to be published in the newspapers of the city, or in handbills or circulars, calling thereto the attention of the public.

8. He shall record in a book reports of all causes of nuisance, and take measures to have the same examined and corrected. He shall also keep a record of all reported defects in the highways and immediately report the same to the commissioner of streets; and shall also keep a record of all accidents whereby the city may become chargeable, with the circumstances, names of witnesses, and particular description of locality.

9. He shall attend daily at the city hall between the hours of eleven and twelve in the forenoon, and at such other times as he can consistently with his other duties, for the purpose of receiving complaints of the inhabitants respecting offences against the law and ordinances.

10. He shall keep a record of all intelligence offices, junk shops, dealers in second-hand articles, and pawnbrokers, and examine their books and property as often as he shall deem proper, and shall also keep a record of all suspected gambling houses, drinking saloons, and houses of ill-repute, as also of all convicted persons who are likely to become dangerous to the community.

11. He may, with the approval of the mayor, designate one or more of the police officers to act as special detectives, to visit such places, watch such persons, and note transactions of which he may require information, and such detectives shall at all times hold themselves in readiness to answer any calls made by the marshal, and shall be allowed such compensation for all such service as the marshal shall determine with the approval of the mayor.

ASSISTANT MARSHALS.

1. Each of the assistant marshals shall be called by the watch every alternate morning. He shall proceed to the police station in season to receive the report of the watch for the preceding night, and discharge them. He shall remain at the station until twelve o'clock M., when he shall be relieved by the other assistant marshal, who shall remain at the station till ten o'clock P. M., being relieved one hour for tea by the other assistant marshal. But during the winter months the assistant marshal at the station in the morning shall be relieved by the other assistant marshal one hour for breakfast. Before leaving the station at any time, the assistant marshals shall see that the same is left in charge of the janitor, or other proper police officer.

2. Should there be an exhibition in the evening, requiring the attendance of a police officer, the assistant marshal who has charge of the Station during the morning, shall be the officer to perform that duty. If more than one police officer be required, the marshal shall designate which of the police officers shall be detailed for that purpose, and the officer so detailed shall be allowed only the regular evening compensation.

3. The other assistant marshal, when not on other official duty, shall patrol the city, taking notice of all alterations made or attempted in the streets, sidewalks, and public ways, or of arrangements of any kind by individuals in any localities affecting the convenience and welfare of the citizens generally, and of all practices which are injurious or may tend to injurious results. He shall note and give information in reference to truancy and juvenile delinquency, or misdemeanors, and watch over all the precincts and interests of the city, that the several departments of the public service may be better administered by the authorities to whom they are intrusted. During the evening, he shall note the conduct, faithfulness, and efficiency of the patrolmen detailed for duty, and report to the marshal any remissness of duty observed by him.

4. Whenever any person begs in the street, or goes from door to door soliciting alms, it shall be the duty of the marshal, or assistant marshals, to inquire the home and abode of such person, and note the same for record, and to direct such person, if in distress, to the clerk of the overseers of the poor, or to any charitable association affording relief in similar cases.

5. The whole time of the marshal and assistant marshals being at the disposal of the mayor and aldermen, they shall not perform any services other than required of them by the mayor and aldermen, or serve other processes than those of the police court of the city of Salem, nor receive any extra compensation whatever without the approval of the mayor. Nor shall any member of the police department, directly or indirectly, accept from any person either liable to be arrested, or to complaint, or in custody, or after he has been discharged, or from any of his friends, any gratuity or reward whatsoever.

6. The assistant marshals, and other police officers as well, will be expected not only to use their best efforts to detect the criminal, but also to prevent the commission of crime.

EVENING PATROL.

1. Each evening, the roll will be called at the police station at the hour named by the marshal, and no member absent at roll call, except by permission or for sufficient reasons, will be allowed pay for that evening; and every member at the close of his service shall come in at the time designated by the marshal, and report himself, otherwise he will be liable to be charged absent for the evening.

2. Every member is required to wear his badge upon his left breast and upon the outside of his outer garment, plainly exposed to view, when on his way to and from his residence to the police station, as well as at all times when on duty before the public, unless by permission of the marshal. Whenever any member of the patrol resigns or is discharged, or in any way vacates his office, he shall surrender to the marshal his badge and police buttons.

3. The city will be divided into beats, and the rounds of regular evening service will be from time to time specified; but it is to be clearly understood that, when occasion requires, officers are liable to be called into service for any portion of the day, if necessary. Immediately after roll call, the patrolmen shall each repair to his beat, and continually patrol within the limits thereof, except in case of fire, arrest of a prisoner, or other necessary absence on duty, until the time assigned for the expiration of his tour of duty.

4. Patrolmen must not walk together, or talk with each other or with any other person on their beats, unless it be to communicate information pertaining to the department, or in the line of their duty, and such communication must be as brief as possible.

5. Each patrolman must strictly watch the conduct of all persons of known bad character, fixing in his mind such impressions as will enable him to recognize persons whom he frequently meets in the streets under suspicious circumstances, and to the utmost of his power prevent the commission of assaults, breaches of the peace, and all other crimes about to be committed.

6. He shall see that the thoroughfares and sidewalks do not become obstructed, and whenever any person shall habitually stand upon or near any foot or sidewalk in such manner as to obstruct the free passage of passengers, or to expose passengers to unnecessary inconvenience or annoyance, it shall be the duty of the officer to request such person to move on ; and if any such person unreasonably persists in standing so as to incommodate other passengers, the officer shall endeavor to ascertain the name of such person, and report the same to the marshal for prosecution.

7. If any member of the patrol wishes to be absent for one or more evenings, he must in all cases notify the marshal previous to the noon preceding the evening he wishes to be absent.

8. The marshal may, immediately after roll call, on account of the weather, or from any cause he may deem proper, discharge for the evening the whole or any number of the patrol, and when so discharged they shall be entitled to only twenty cents pay for that evening.

9. Each patrolman shall present to the marshal for his approval and for transmission to the mayor, his monthly bill for services, on or before the second day of each month.

10. He shall acquaint himself thoroughly with the ordinances of the city, and use all possible vigilance to prevent the violation of the same, or the commission of crime, or whatever may lead to disturbing the peace of the city, and shall at all times keep the marshal informed of important matters coming to his knowledge relative to the interest of the department. Whenever he has occasion to address himself to any one who may be violating the law, he shall do so in a pleasant and gentlemanly manner, and at all times, and under all circumstances, avoid hasty, passionate, and irritating remarks. When it becomes necessary to take a prisoner into custody, he shall do so in as quiet a manner as possible, only using sufficient force to secure the prisoner, and no more, and in no instance shall he strike a prisoner except in self-defence. Any unnecessary abuse of prisoners while in custody, will be met with reproof and discharge from the service.

11. When any person is taken into custody, he shall be brought to the station, and a full description of his person, and the time and cause of his arrest, his name and that of the arresting officer, shall be recorded in a book kept for the purpose. If any property is taken from any such person, it shall be put together, carefully marked, and placed in the care of the marshal.

12. No member of the police shall belong to any engine, or other company of the fire department.

13. It is expected that the marshal and one assistant marshal, with all the patrol in the daytime, and such of them as can be spared in the evening, will be present at every fire that may occur in the city, and wear their badges, to preserve order, protect property and detect thieves.

14. The use of spirituous liquors or wines, boisterous or indecent language or conduct, and profanity are strictly forbidden at the police station, and it shall be the duty of the assistant marshals and captain of the watch to report any disobedience of the rules, or other irregularity that comes to their knowledge, to the marshal. If any member of the police, or patrol, or watch, while on duty, shall be known to visit any drinking saloon, gambling house, or house of ill-fame, except in the performance of his duty, he shall be discharged from the service, and a record of such discharge shall be made by the marshal in his books, with the reason thereof.

POLICE UNIFORM.

The city marshal shall wear a black hat, with a gold or gilt button in a rosette thereon; a blue frock coat, with police buttons; a blue vest, with police buttons; black pants, and a dark blue overcoat.

The assistant marshals shall wear a black hat with a silver button on enamelled leather thereon; a blue frock, with police buttons; a blue vest, with police buttons; black pants, and a dark blue overcoat.

Patrolmen shall wear a dark blue, double-breasted frock-coat, with police buttons; a blue vest, single-breasted, made to button up to the top, except a loop under the chin, with police buttons; dark pants, and a blue cloth cap with glazed cover.

No umbrellas are permitted on duty, but a rubber cap cover and a portable cape, are allowed in wet weather.

NIGHT POLICE.

1. The watchmen shall assemble at the police station at five minutes before 10 o'clock P. M. The roll shall be called precisely at 10 o'clock. Any member who shall be absent at roll call, except for some reason satisfactory to the captain of the watch, shall be fined fifty cents, the same to be deducted from his pay. Each watchman shall carry a watchman's spear or club, rattle, and alarm key; but shall not carry an umbrella while on duty.

2. The captain of the watch shall direct the route of the watchmen, and shall so direct and manage, that the centre of the city shall be constantly guarded, and that every other part of the city shall be as well and equally watched as the number of the watchmen will admit. He shall change the route of the watchmen every night, so that the same watchmen shall have a different route from that of the night preceding.

3. Each division of the watch may come in, at some specified time, in the night, between October 1st and April 15th, to rest one hour; during that hour, the keeper of the station shall make a tour, and then return, that the several watches may make a second tour; and all the watchmen shall return to the station half an hour before sunrise, between November 1st and March 1st, and at sunrise during the remainder of the year, and report doings to the assistant marshal.

4. The captain of the watch shall go to the station in season to make all necessary arrangements for the night, before the watchmen assemble. He shall so arrange that one of the watch shall, in his regular turn, be keeper of the station. The keeper shall guard the station and all persons brought there for safe keeping at all times, except the time the watchmen are at rest there; he shall make such short tours as often as may be consistent with his duty aforesaid.

5. The captain of the watch shall, at least once every night, and at different hours, walk the rounds of the several districts, to ascertain if the watchmen are vigilant and attentive to their duties, and he shall report to the marshal every neglect of duty by any watchman.

6. In no case shall the watchmen go together on their route; and they shall be careful not to make any noise, either by talking, walking, or otherwise.

7. Each watchman shall examine in the night time all doors of stores on his beat, to see that they are properly secured, and if not found locked, he shall, if possible, make the same fast, and report such cases to the captain of the watch, who shall notify the owner in the morning. He shall give special attention to vacant houses on his beat, to prevent depredations, and be always vigilant to detect and prevent fire.

8. In case of fire, he shall first ascertain if it can be extinguished without alarm; if it cannot, he shall immediately spring his rattle and cry "Fire!" distinctly, say where it is, and ring the alarm bells as soon as possible. Watchmen in other parts of the city, upon hearing such alarm, shall forthwith spread the alarm, and ring the nearest alarm bell. Any instructions of the marshal relative to fires in neighboring towns, must be explicitly obeyed, that the community may not be unnecessarily disturbed and alarmed by distant fires. Watchmen on duty near the fire shall, after giving alarm, repair at once to the same, and act as fire police till the arrival of the marshal or other police officers, when they shall return to their beats as soon as practicable.

9. It shall be the duty of the watchmen to render all proper assistance and relief to any person who may be found abroad in distress or requiring protection. All persons found intoxicated, shall be aided to their homes, if practicable, if not, they shall be carried to the station and reported to the marshal. Any person reasonably suspected of having committed a felony, or found committing a breach of the peace, or being unlawfully armed with a dangerous weapon, and also night-walkers, shall be arrested and carried to the station, and there safely kept until morning, and delivered to the marshal or his assistants. The marshal shall investigate the case, and, if in his judgment it is expedient and practicable, prosecute the person or persons. All persons brought to the station, shall be properly searched, and whatever shall be taken from them, shall be properly marked and delivered to the marshal. The name and description of all persons carried to the station, and causes for which they were taken, as well as the names of all persons furnished with lodgings at the station, shall be properly recorded by the clerk of the watch.

10. No substitute shall be received or permitted to act at any time in the place of one of the watchmen, unless he be approved by the mayor or marshal and the captain of the watch; after having once been received as a substitute, the same person may act again, upon the approval of the captain of the watch, until disapproved by the mayor or marshal.

11. The captain of the watch, and each watchman, will strictly regard and maintain the requirements of articles 4, 10, 12 and 14, in the patrol regulations.

12. If any member of the watch wishes to be absent for one or more nights, he must in all cases notify the captain of the watch as early as 6 o'clock P. M. previous to the night he wishes to be excused.

Any infringement of this rule, except on account of sudden sickness, will be considered sufficient cause for removal from office. Any watchman detected sleeping during watch hours, or in a sleeping posture, or otherwise neglecting his duty, shall forfeit all wages then due him from the city, and be dismissed from the watch.
